

I am paying a for a premium service (XM Radio) and XM should be able to broadcast whatever they want. It is nice to be able to turn on the weather or traffic and get instant information as opposed to having to sit through commercial after commercial until its time for the weather and traffic on regular AM/FM channels. What good would come out of shutting these XM channels down? Maybe more companies can get their commercials played while we sit and wait for the information, therefore generating business for them. But that is exactly why us XM users subscribed to a premium service and we are paying to enjoy the benefits.
